RESOURCE LIST

The materials found in this resource list focus on research reports, books, manuals and audio-visual materials relevant to the field of sex-role stereotyping and biases. They are intended to provide a baseline resource list for use in professional and social settings. Wherever possible, mailing addresses and names of contact persons are provided to facilitate dissemination of the materials. Resources available from ERIC have the appropriate information given.

The resource list is divided into several sections to help locate information quickly and easily. The twelve sections are listed below with a short description of each section.

Audio-Visual Materials

Resources such as film-strips, 16mm films, cassettes, slide-shows, records and handbooks on audio-visual materials.

Bibliographies

Additional bibliographies and reference lists are presented.

Careers

Handbooks, research statistics, and other materials concerned with all aspects of vocational and career education.

Classroom/Teaching

Methodologies and information that can be applied directly in a classroom. Deals with all levels of students.

Counseling

Primarily, this section is concerned with counseling women and girls and with eliminating sex-discrimination in counseling.

Curricular Materials

Guidelines for evaluating the extent of sex-bias in a textbook are provided. Additionally, a number of sex-bias-free textbooks are reviewed.

Language

Contains resources dealing with recognizing and eliminating sexist language.

Law

Presents materials explaining laws related to sex-discrimination and results of initiating laws into different settings.

Measurement

Assessment instruments that may produce sex-biased results.

Policy-Papers

Statements and views regarding sex-bias in language, careers, and education by national organizations.

Sex-Roles

Literature and research on societal-defined sex roles.

Workshop Modules

Handbooks for implementing and directing workshops on sex-stereotyping and bias.

Following each section a blank page is provided for listing additional materials.
